

ABSTRACT

[0043] A processing chamber for semiconductor wafers is provided with internal and external handling devices. The external handling devices are arranged to transfer wafers from a cassette into the chamber. The internal handling device includes a fork arranged for movement within the chamber and to interact with the external handling device to receive wafers therefrom and to transport the wafers between a heating plate and a cooling plate within the chamber.